

REPUBLICAN BINGO

If Republicans insist on playing games with Wall Street reform, then you should too. To help pass the time as Republicans seek carve-outs and loopholes for lobbyists in the Wall Street accountability bill, the SDCC invites you to play a round of Republican bingo with their favorite talking points, Wall Street consultant Frank Luntz's words that work.

L	U	N	T	Z
Decry Washington Bureaucrats, Protect Wall St Bankers	Claim Wall St. Doesn't Need More Oversight – Everything's Fine!	Demand Transparency After Secret Meetings With Wall St. Execs	Argue Against Interests Of Hard Working Taxpayers	Say We Don't Need New Cop On The Beat
Push False Claim That Bill Continues Bailouts	Say Protecting Consumers Is "Wasteful Washington Spending"	Argue That Wall St. Does Not Need Accountability	Falsely Label Bill A "Big Bank Bailout"	Say "We Need A Solution" While Blocking A Debate On One
Carve Out Lobbyist Loopholes	Delay By Claiming Bill Will Have Mysterious Unintended Consequences	Say You Want To Help Small Businesses While Standing Up For Wall St.	Argue Current Laws Are Enough – No Change Needed!	Delay Reform By Claiming "Devil Is In The Details"
Say You're Helping "The Little Guy" While Standing Up For Wall St.	Say "Never Again" While Pushing For Business As Usual	Decry "Bureaucrats," Stand Up For Wall St. Traders	Stand Up For Special Interests	Decry "Red Tape," Ignore Reckless Wall St. Gambling
Decry "Bloated Bureaucracy," Do Nothing To Prevent Another Aig	Beg For Time To Read "Fine Print," Pretend Negotiations Haven't Been Going On For Months	Carry Water For Reckless Wall Street Firms While Claiming To Stand For The Middle Class	Decry "Government Incompetence," Ignore Wall St. Recklessness	Fear-Monger About "Unlimited Regulatory Powers,"